Curriculum Studies Highlight
2019

Program Highlight
The new stand-alone PhD in Curriculum Studies has been open to applications. It has three options: Curriculum and Leadership Option, College Curriculum and Teaching, International and Peace Curriculum. Drawing students from diverse backgrounds into the program, it will enhance the program’s national reputation.

Student Highlight

Honors and Award
- Megan Ruby won the STLES First Place in 3MT Competition
- Kasty France is 2018-2020 President of Oklahoma Association for Developmental Education (OKADE) and chaired the OKADE conferences
- Jo Flory and Megan Ruby received Helen M Jones Scholarship
- Annie Stevenson received the EHA Scholarship in Teaching
- Megan Ruby received Robberson Graduate Fellowship Award
- Jessica Watts was selected for 2018-2019 Outstanding Graduate Teaching Assistant

Publications

Conference Presentations
Kasty France made three presentations at the 2019 National Association for Developmental Education conference in Atlanta, GA, including a presentation on "The Role and Value of Reflective Writing in Developmental Education Curriculum."

Faculty Highlight

Grant:
Dyke, E. (2019). Impacts of the 2018 Education Strike Wave on Teachers’ Activism and Advocacy, Spencer Foundation Small Research Grant, $50,000
The project engages community-based participatory and oral history methods to collect and study oral history narratives from educators who participated in the 2018 statewide education walkouts. Dyke, along with a team of thirteen educator scholars and activists from across the state of Oklahoma, hope to offer useful insights and analysis that can support contemporary educator movement efforts in the state, nationally, and beyond.
The collection of oral history narratives will be archived and made publicly accessible with the Oklahoma Oral History Research Program.

Book Projects:

Publications:

Honor and Awards:
Dr. Erin Dyke was an invited speaker at the two day public conference, Whose Crisis? Whose University? Abolitionist Study in and beyond Global Higher Education. Franklin Humanities Institute, Duke University, Durham, NC.

Dr. Hongyu Wang was invited and became a member of International Curriculum Networks at UNESCO. She was a recipient of OSU-Tulsa President’s Outstanding Teaching Award in 2019.