

COLLEGE STUDENT DEVELOPMENT M.S. EDUCATIONAL LEADERSHIP STUDIES

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION,
HEALTH &
AVIATION

Oklahoma State offers a master's degree with an emphasis in college student development for individuals who desire a career in student affairs. The program seeks to educate, inspire and make a difference with students who will improve colleges and universities through the leadership of and within student affairs organizations. The program provides students with the educational experience and skills necessary to analyze and resolve educational issues and work with a wide diversity of students.

THE GOAL OF THE PROGRAM IS TO DEVELOP LEADERS WHO:

- ▷ Balance theory, research and practice in the leadership of student affairs initiatives
- ▷ Develop scholar-practitioners who will advance the field and profession of student affairs
- ▷ Think critically about, and devise creative solutions for, student issues within diverse college ecosystems
- ▷ Build professional capacities within the area of student affairs administration as a part of the larger university environment

Students in the program work with academic faculty and affiliated faculty who are employed full-time as student affairs administrators.

For more than 45 years, we have placed our graduates in student affairs positions at colleges and universities across the U.S. OSU alumni are recognized as some of the most talented student affairs professionals in the country.
