The Things They Carried was published in 1990 by Vietnam War veteran and National Book Award winner Tim O'Brien. The narrative focuses on the personal level of war and the crucial role of memory. After 50 years, we still carry significant memories associated with the Vietnam War, including the tough decisions made during that time. We will examine our memories using this thought-provoking book. If you enjoy reading fiction, expressing opinions, asking questions and hearing what others have to say, please join us. Our instructor is Steven Surbeck, who has taught English for 36 years and is an expert in discussing and examining plays, novels, short stories and poems.

CIVIL WAR IN INDIAN TERRITORY

Tuesdays from 1 to 3 p.m.

June 4-18 | Oklahoma History Center

Instructor: Mike Sheriff

COST: $25 for annual members or free for unlimited members | SUPPLY FEE: none

Indian Territory, otherwise known as Oklahoma, was home to more than 100 Civil War engagements and experienced higher casualty and property damage than other states during the war. The aspects of war in Indian Territory were deeply complicated and involved over 20 different Indian nations. Both the Union and the Confederacy negotiated and made allegiances with the Indians. Historical notes include one of the first African American units in combat, the last Confederate general to surrender, the freeman involvement, strategy, tactics and weapons. We will cover the war from a military and personal perspective, and the discussion will end with the Treaties of 1866. Mike Sheriff, an avid historian and retired engineer, will lead this class. Sheriff is a recognized authority on cattle drives, the Civil War and U.S. Marshal in Indian/Oklahoma Territory. He is a docent at the Oklahoma History Center, portrays multiple living history characters and is a volunteer curator with the Oklahoma Historical Society.
