Oklahoma State University offers a Master of Science in Teaching, Learning and Leadership with an option in Curriculum and Leadership Studies. The degree is available on the OSU - Stillwater and OSU - Tulsa campuses.

The Curriculum and Leadership Studies degree option is designed to prepare students to assume leadership roles in schools, colleges and other educational institutions. Students may go on to serve in cultural, social and educational settings as teacher and curriculum leaders, administrators, curriculum coordinators, professional development specialists and researchers. While specialization is required, maximum program flexibility enables students to meet their individual goals by addressing the following:

- What does it mean to educate and to be educated?
- What is the relationship between learning and teaching?
- How do power relationships influence curriculum?
- What are the dynamics of curriculum theory and educational practice?
- What are the meanings of diversity, mindfulness and nonviolence in school settings?
