School of Teaching and Curriculum Leadership
OSU Stillwater and Tulsa

Master’s Degree in Teaching, Learning, and Leadership (TLL)

The Master’s degree in Teaching, Learning, and Leadership (TLL) provides a sound knowledge base in curriculum and pedagogy. A 36-hour program, the TLL degree has a common core, seven options, and several specialized areas of emphasis within the option areas. Designed for those who want to increase their understanding, effectiveness, and leadership qualities in their work with learners of all ages, the various options of the degree program prepare graduates for positions as curriculum planners, school educational leaders, and teacher researchers. Core courses in curriculum issues and educational advocacy and leadership provide a basis that is both theoretically rich and practically oriented, and each applicant can choose the particular option area that best meets her/his needs and interests. Program content will benefit those teachers preparing for National Board Certification.

Options and Emphasis Areas within the TLL Master’s Degree

Curriculum and Leadership Studies
Elementary/Middle/Secondary/K-12
  Elementary and Middle Level
  Secondary
  Initial Licensure in Elementary Education
Math/Science
  Mathematics Education
  Science Education
  Integrated Math/Science Education
Occupational Education
  OCED Teaching
  OCED Administration
  OCED Workforce Development
  OCED Pre-Engineering Education
Reading/Literacy
Special Education
  Special Education Certification
  Literacy
Secondary Education for Teachers Non-Traditionally Certified or Seeking Initial License
  Non-Traditionally Certified
  Initial Licensure in Art (K-12), English, Foreign Language (K-12), Math, Science, or Social Studies