OSU Cineculture---Tulsa presents

All the Difference

Inspired by Wes Moore’s New York Times bestselling book, the film explores the factors in the lives of two young black men (education, parents and grandparents, teachers, role models, personal drive and community support) that made all the difference in helping them be the first in their families to most likely escape poverty and secure a place in the middle class.

Guest post-screening discussant:
Autumn Brown, doctoral student in Social Foundations
Conducting research about education in underrepresented groups

Wednesday, March 28th
5:30 pm 010 Willard