The College of Education, Health and Aviation depends on annual support from people who have benefited from its programs in the past and who are dedicated to seeing Oklahoma State University recognized as one of the outstanding universities in the country. The College of Education, Health and Aviation Associates are vitally important to helping us achieve our goals. Current areas of focus include:

- Planning for the future of the OSU Flight Center that serves our aviation students
- Increasing scholarship support for our students
- Supporting student recruitment and retention
- Branding the new College of Education, Health and Aviation
- Expanding partnerships in health and aviation
- Growing the number of certified teachers for Oklahoma

WHAT IS THE COLLEGE OF EDUCATION, HEALTH AND AVIATION ASSOCIATES?
The Associates is a group of individuals whose experience, counsel and participation have had a profound impact on the College of Education, Health and Aviation’s ability to provide a quality educational experience for its students. Members of the Associates may or may not be graduates of the college. The group advances the college while advocating for its mission and serving as ambassadors for the college. Specifically, the College of Education, Health and Aviation Associates:

- Cultivate an awareness and appreciation for the value and contributions of the College of Education, Health and Aviation to students, colleagues and the community at large.
- Promote activities and accomplishments of each sector of the College of Education, Health and Aviation.
- Partner with the Dean to support his vision and goals for the College of Education, Health and Aviation.
- Provide financial support, including contributions to scholarship funds and other annual priorities to further enhance the success of the College of Education, Health and Aviation.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS?
- Inside access/direct input on strategic planning for the College of Education, Health and Aviation.
- Opportunity to partner with the Dean to allocate funds toward college initiatives and special projects.
- Special invitation to semiannual business meetings and other premier college events throughout the year.
- Hands-on role in shaping the future of the college and paving the way for continued success.
